

Hawaiian Homecoming

By: Sadie Nay

Homecoming Week provided all sorts of fun for students and staff alike. Throughout the week, students participated in dress up days, and many attended the Hawaiian themed dance.

On Thursday and Friday, students were also able to jump on the inflatables. Students raced each other in obstacle courses, and competed to see who finished first. On the slide, many students had fun going down, and up, the slide. The student body's favorite activity was probably the jousting pit. Although it was quite a work out, students thoroughly enjoyed knocking each other, and Mrs. Bumbleburg, down into the pit.

The Hawaiian dance had a fairly good turn out. Students danced to songs, ranging from Fergalicious to Cotton Eye Joe. A dance circle was formed, in which students did push-up contests and did all kinds of dances to different songs. And at one point, all of the students even made a conga line that paraded throughout the cafeteria. Students received their yearbooks, and enjoyed looking at all of the pictures of themselves and their peers. In the end, students left the dance laughing and joking about all of the fun they had.

Overall, Homecoming Week provided students with all kinds of fun activities that will be remembered for years to come.
